Dear Dr. Cai,

With this letter we hope to acknowledge for your help and support during our consulting course project. We are quite fresh to this sort of problem and you are so patient that not only providing us lots of details in terms of biology also giving us enough freedom to devise our new methodology based on the historical academic route. In the meantime, you took considerable enthusiasm and time to meet with us for discussing the potential biological meaning endowed within our model in spite of your busy schedule. We appreciate both the academic help and spiritual support that you provide so much since we may take a pretty much longer time to complete the whole project without your instruction. Through this project we also have learnt some experiences about the application of statistical tools in gene engineering and biological area. Thank you for all you have done, Dr. Cai. We really appreciate them.

Sincerely thankful,
Guanxun Li & Honggang Wang
